WINDOW STILL WIDE OPEN ON TRI-CITY'S
"HOME RUNOVATION" PROMOTION SPONSORED BY HARVEY

Third in home runs in NY-Penn League, ValleyCats' long balls may yet produce a winner of $25,000 in home renovations from Northeast's leading window maker

Waltham, Mass. (Dateline) — Between now and September 6, home-owning fans of the Tri-City ValleyCats have a shot at a fully paid home improvement project through a promotion sponsored by Harvey. Any ValleyCats home run that passes through the Harvey window display beyond the outfield wall at Joe Bruno Stadium will win a lucky fan $25,000-worth of home renovation.

An attending fan chosen at the start of each home game has the opportunity to win a Harvey home renovation project worth up to $25,000 in materials and labor if a ValleyCats batter sends a ball through the Harvey window. Though the team has homered 29 times (at home and on the road, as of August 8), a total that ties them for third in the New York-Penn League, none of those balls has passed through the window of opportunity.

Harvey, a leading Northeast manufacturer of windows, doors and patio rooms and premier wholesale distributor of quality building products, created the "Harvey Home Runovation" promotion this season with the ValleyCats to build awareness and interest in its line of wood and vinyl windows for both replacement and new construction. Serving contractors since 1961, the company operates manufacturing facilities, branch warehouses and public product showrooms throughout the Northeast region, including a branch warehouse facility at 4253 Albany Street in Albany.
