Waltham, Mass. (March 12, 2008) — Continuing its growth throughout the Northeast, Harvey Building Products will open the second of two new distribution and showroom facilities in Pennsylvania. Located at 99 Buck Road in Huntingdon Valley, the [#30,000]-square-foot branch warehouse will contain a [#2,400]-square-foot product showroom at which homeowners can view Harvey's full range of manufactured and distributed building products. The location will be managed by [Thom Cutugno] and will serve contractors from [Doylestown] southward to [Egg Harbor City], and from [Spring Lake] westward to [Philadelphia].

“Harvey Building Products is committed to being the best independent manufacturer and wholesale distributor, providing quality products and unmatched service levels to building and remodeling professionals. With the opening of this facility, as well as the late 2008 opening of the King of Prussia [Pa.]facility , we are extending our commitment to professional contractors and homeowners in Pennsylvania,” said Vinnie Walsh, vice president of warehouse operations. “We look forward to establishing and maintaining mutually beneficial, long-term relationships with professional partners and customers in the region, and we are especially excited to increase our customer support during a challenging economy when they need it most.”

With existing facilities in Bethlehem, Lancaster, Wilkes-Barre and King of Prussia, the Huntingdon Valley location will significantly extend Harvey's coverage for Pennsylvania-based contractors seeking excellence in construction materials, services and expertise. The new facility will take advantage of energy-saving automatic lighting technologies which operate on a motion sensor and also turn off automatically when there is sufficient natural light.

Although Harvey sells exclusively to professional remodelers and builders through its branch warehouses, the product showrooms are open to the general public and feature interactive, consumer-friendly displays. The showrooms afford homeowners the opportunity to see first-hand what Harvey has stood for over 45 years — a wide range of building products that enhance the home; up-to-date technology for comfort and energy efficiency; and solid, well-made, long-lasting products designed to endure the highs and lows of northeast weather. With the Huntingdon Valley opening, Harvey will operate 38 facilities in New England, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

In a special show of support, Harvey will mark the Grand Opening of the Huntingdon Valley facility with Open House activities centered on the theme, "Harvey has the key to your success." Details of these festivities will be announced in subsequent communications.
